This oration commemorates the life of Professor John Beveridge who in 1962 founded the Prince of Wales Children’s Hospital, now Sydney Children’s Hospital, Randwick.

Professor Beveridge retired in 1990 and died in 1999.

About Libby Davies, CEO of White Ribbon Australia

Libby Davies is currently the CEO of White Ribbon Australia, Australia’s national primary prevention organisation with a particular focus on engaging men to be active drivers of social change to stop violence against women. Libby has previously held CEO positions in national organisations such as Family Services Australia, UnitingCare Australia and Brain Injury Australia. She has served on numerous boards and advisory councils including at Ministerial, national and state levels, was a Director of Lifeline Australia, is a member of the NSW Domestic and Family Violence Council, member of the NSW Preventing Domestic and Family Violence Social Investment Advisory Group and has been engaged in the Ministerial Roundtable on Prevention of Violence, Victoria and Queensland. She has led transformative programs to engage men in the prevention of men’s violence against women and to build community capacity to be the drivers of positive social change and gender equality. She works to enable innovation in the prevention of violence, working alongside and with the many others that are committed to addressing the abuse of women and gender inequality. In 2015 Libby was awarded the NSW ‘For Purpose and Social Enterprise’ Telstra Women in Business Award. She is a graduate of the AICD, a mother and grandmother of two adorable grandchildren.
